

I Believe

by Milan Huff

I believe that life is a bubble gun blowing opportunities all around us

And that we must rush towards them rather than waiting for them to smack us in the face.

I believe that every action leaves an imprint

And that these imprints mold us into the people we are.

I believe that life is like chocolate,

That there are positive and negative affects.

I believe that there is no such thing as status,

That we are all equal.

I believe that today is like no other day,

And that we should see what bubbles we can pop
